Sandwich year (optional)

The Sandwich Year is a period of work placement experience in the fashion industry that students will undertake during the third year of their studies. A work placement constitutes an invaluable opportunity to learn and gain insights into how the industry is structured and how it operates, to put into practice the theories and knowledge acquired during your studies and to further enhance the practical skills learned during the first two years at Istituto Marangoni London.

Under the close supervision and guidance of the School as well as of the company where students will be undertaking the placement, during the Sandwich Year they are required to complete a 36-week industry placement relevant to the learning outcomes of their programme and relatable to their career objectives and professional development.

The skills learned will give students practical knowledge of the nature of the business, its functions, and operations. Students will also acquire and/or strengthen those transferable skills that have become a fundamental requisite for boosting their employability and enhancing your professionalism.

The School ensures that students have access to all academic / regulatory information that students should familiarise with at the start of each academic year. Those include (but not limited to):

- Yearly re-enrolment and payment of enrolment fee
- Active academic engagement (at least 80% attendance (termly))
- Timely notification of absences

The Sandwich year will be graded as a Pass/Fail and students who complete the 120 credits for the Sandwich year will receive a Certificate of Completion for the Placement, which is credit bearing, upon completion of their degree or when leaving with an exit award.

Units

The course is composed of a number of units that each have a credit value. On successfully passing each of these units, you will gain credits that count towards the total needed for your degree.

One credit equates to 10 notional hours, which is the average time a student will take to achieve the specified learning outcomes. So, if a unit is worth 10 credits, then students would expect to spend 100 hours studying. These will not all be 'taught' hours. You will receive guidance and instruction through lectures, seminars, etc., but you will also need to engage in self-study. A percentage breakdown of teaching contact hours and self-study required on this course is indicated in Section 6.

On an undergraduate degree course provided by Istituto Marangoni London, students are expected to study 120 credit per level (or year) with no more than 60 credits per term.

6. Learning and teaching strategy/ assessment methods (non-regulatory)

This is a guide to the academic opportunities available to help you achieve the overall aims and objectives of the course and the intended learning outcomes in Section 5. It is also a guide to the assessment methods used to test your achievement of the intended learning outcomes. In order to meet the full intended learning outcomes of the course, you will be expected to study independently, participate in class discussions, ask for support in academic skills if required and engage with your personal tutors.

The Teaching and Learning Strategy is central to the overall objectives of the programme.

The emphasis is placed on achieving an appropriate balance between deepening your academic knowledge and business acumen and building creative, practical, and transferable skills.

This Strategy places the “you” at the centre of the teaching and learning environment.

Through interactive, experiential teaching and learning activities, we aim to support you to develop into a self-directed, autonomous learner who has responsibility for your own learning process.

Istituto Marangoni London Teaching and Learning Strategy is designed to reflect the changing skills required within the fashion industry with a philosophy of being interdisciplinary. The aim is to provide you with a broad range of practical and theoretical knowledge and skills specific to Fashion Design studies and their areas of specialisation, which are also applicable to the wider skills required in the workplace.

At Istituto Marangoni we aim to deliver a personalised student experience. With over 100 nationalities within the cohorts, our classes have a cultural richness which offers a global perspective within every session.

The programmes are predominantly created with an industrial spin, simulating a real-life experience curated by our team, which includes top of the line industry professionals.

Our classes are delivered across 2.5-hour sessions comprising of a diversity of lectures, seminars, labs, and tutorials; which are tailor made by our tutors in order to integrate both theoretical and practical deliverables. Each student has 15 hours of delivered sessions per week. At the halfway mark of each term, we provide formative feedback to every student giving them personalised suggestions, and critical support in order to develop their work further.

- Lectures are used to communicate key theories and practices of the subject
- Practice based workshops are key to communicate, demonstrate and acquire tool's and technics fluency, in physical and digital 3D expression
- Seminar groups are used to discuss current affairs and industrial issues, often via case studies.
- Labs are used for development of physical work through synergic confluence of 2D and 3D research recreating Industry practice using CLO3D

At Istituto Marangoni we pride ourselves on inclusive and interactive teaching. All classrooms hold no more than 25 students, in order to offer more one-to-one contact time between you and your tutors.

This allows for us to cater to SEN students, and each class's unique needs. It also allows for an interactive classroom, encouraging you to share your opinions, and develop peer to peer learning skills.

The course is designed so that you will study under direction of your lecturers at the beginning of your degree and gradually move towards greater independence as you progress through the terms towards your final projects.

Fashion has traditionally been taught in lab environments, while theory-based degrees have been taught through formal lectures.

Your programme combines the best of both traditions, giving you a good combination of lecture-based teaching with tutorial support, and lab-based teaching with individual and group critiques and activities. It also combines the best in terms of the forms that your work will take, spanning project-based learning, essays, fashion industry practice, presentations, and hands-on experiential learning such as physical (fittings) and digital (Clo3D) still/moving prototypes and outfits creation.

When considering the digital learning environment, you not only have access to cutting edge resources such as industry standards CAD software but a versatile library of equipment. All teaching resources and materials are available for use via the virtual learning environment.

Industry projects, work experience, tutors who are practising professionals and guest lecturers give you valuable links with the profession and ensure that your learning is constantly updated with regard to industry currency.

At the beginning of each Unit, you will be given a Unit Handbook and other materials (such as Projects/Assessment Briefs) by your lecturer(s). These set out everything you need to know about your learning on that module, for example: what form learning and teaching will take, the module content, the aims and learning outcomes for the module, and the ways in which you will be assessed, deadlines for submission of work and how the module will be scheduled in terms of how much time you will spend in different kinds of activities each week (for example: lab-based work, lectures, workshops, digital, field trips). It will also contain information about what kind of work you are asked to submit for assessment (for instance projects, essays, presentations, reflective self-evaluations, learning journals, physical research and/or design books, portfolios, and 3D developments) and it will tell you the weightings of those assessments (for instance: 90% for a Portfolio and 10% for an Oral Presentation).

We highly recommend that you complete internships/work placements in the industry in addition to your studies. Work placements enable you to enrich your understanding of the industry, consolidate what you have learned and make valuable networking within the profession. Some students are offered jobs once they graduate with the companies that they have worked with on work placements. Work placements may be as short as a few hours and as long as several months during the summer break.

Industry Work Placement (Sandwich Year) – gives you the opportunity to develop the appropriate skill sets for the workplace relevant to your course and to enhance your prospects of future employment in the sector. You are supported by the Career Services Manager and an allocated Academic tutor during this period. You are required to keep a reflective journal, which forms part of the assessment, once on placement.

The practical skills you gain across the course is a key focus point. We aim to have you develop a great cultural awareness, Marketing strategic skills and craftsmanship to successfully enter the global labour market.

the heart of central London, a true fashion capital, offers a plethora of field visits and trips that are offered to our classes.

Course management and teaching staff

The Course is run by a Programme Leader, supported by Unit Leaders, teaching is delivered by specialist tutors and overseen by a Director of Education.

Some of our academics are continuously involved in research and other scholarly activities while all are involved in practical activities, as well as being heavily involved within the industry in their selected areas of expertise. The course truly relies on our team, being quite active in the environment they teach and deliver in, to create a greater more current experience for the students.

The team's areas of academic and professional interest and experience, directly coincide and support our programme. As such there is a direct correlation that the curriculum is informed by this and updated accordingly.

Visiting Lecturers and Guest Speakers are an integral part of the course and make individual interventions on specific parts of its delivery. They deliver on a level of contemporary information and content that is directly applicable to both the programme deliverables and careers.

Assessment strategy and methods

Assessment is important to your learning. It is a positive element of your education. We use assessment to encourage you to do as well as you can, and you can use it for the same purpose.

While each unit on your programme has learning outcomes, assessment is used to test that you have achieved those learning outcomes. This means that assessment tasks are appropriate for the unit in question. Assessment on your programme is both practical and theoretical, to ensure that you become a reflective practitioner of your art, requiring you both to create fashion outcomes and to consider their role and function in society, and their relationship to the individual.

You will be expected to complete assessments by yourself and as part of group work. You will be asked to document your work and to write self-evaluations. When you are involved in group work you will be asked to keep a log and to evaluate your peers.

You will have at least one formative assessment within the first six weeks of the start of each unit and this helps support you with your studies and highlights any further support that may be needed from the student support officer or the unit leader. It does not contribute to the award mark. Summative assessment measures the student's achievement against the course Learning Outcomes and provides an evaluation of your progress and learning during an entire unit, generating a unit mark and constructive feedback. It also confirms the conditions for referral and retake where applicable. Examples of summative assessment include written assignments (essays, reports, case studies, business plans, market research), practical coursework (Collection Portfolios, Research/Sketch/Fabric Books, 2/3D CLO3D projects and Prototypes production) and oral and visual presentations using a variety of media, both physical and digital (Prototypes fittings, Collection Development).

You are strongly encouraged to seek as much feedback as possible about your progress on your units from your lecturers. Your lecturers will write about your performance and progress on your units (feedback), and they will also write about what you are advised to do in the future (feed-forward). This information is very valuable as it will support you in understanding how well you did in one module, and what you should concentrate on to do as well as possible in future modules.

Please note that IMP may need to keep your work for various reasons, including audits, good practice examples, validations and for External Examiners to review. You are advised to keep copies of your work wherever possible and to contact the Course Leader for information about collecting work.

Ethical approval of research

In accordance with the Istituto Marangoni Research Ethics Policy, all students are required to submit their application for ethical approval at the same time as they submit their initial research proposal, using the School's Research Ethical Approval Form. The application will first be reviewed by their research supervisor in accordance with the ethical approval framework who will either approve it (low risk) and send it to the Research Ethical Committee for final approval or refer it to the Research Ethics Committee for their review and approval (medium/high risk). Proposals requiring ethical review and approval by the Research Ethics Committee include but are not limited to those involving human participants or vulnerable groups, those involving highly sensitive topics and sensitive or restrictive data or materials. Students are advised to refer to the School's Research Ethics Handbook as they develop their research proposals to ensure that they address all potential ethical implications that may arise from their research by putting appropriate measures in place.

7. Relationship to other courses

The cross disciplinary approach of the Course is reflected in the following units:

Level 4 History of Art and Fashion

Level 5 Fashion Art & Cultural Context

Level 6 Final Dissertation

The long units support the core subjects' units taught, enabling you to gain knowledge about Fashion, Art, and Culture.

These units are underpinned by academic methods of teaching and assessment outcomes; from research methodologies to essay writing and at level 6, the research proposal and writing of a final dissertation.

These units are taught across all Fashion Styling and Design courses and their subsequent pathways for:

- BA (Hons) Fashion Styling and Creative Direction
